

Community Thoughts: Unfinished Sentences...

Part of the beauty of worshiping together is the chance to learn from one another. We all have different views. Take some time to reflect and finish the unfinished sentences posted here, as well as the others around the chapel. Read what others have written before you and please come back again to see what others have written after you.